

Justice Ginsburg Honored at Section Meeting

Family Law Takes on Washington

The Section of Family Law's Spring CLE Conference in Washington, D.C., was a great success by any measure. Preceding the conference, many section members participated in ABA Day on the Hill and met with their state representatives to discuss issues in family law. Then more than 200 attorneys gathered from across the country to attend the section meeting and CLE offerings on topics as diverse as relocation, parental alienation, the paperless office, and more. In addition to CLE programs, there were numerous opportunities for networking and socializing with old and new friends. Attendees enjoyed a beautiful and elegant evening at The Cosmos Club, and had an opportunity to explore this beautiful Washington landmark and home to the intellectual elite. The highlight of the meeting for many was the conference luncheon, which featured the presentation of the section's "Friend of the Family" Award to U.S. Supreme Court Associate Justice Ruth Bader Ginsburg. After the presentation, Justice Ginsburg regaled the crowd with stories of her experiences in family law and the changing role of women and the law throughout the years. It was truly a once-in-a-lifetime experience and an honor for all in attendance. The section also was honored to have ABA President Michael Greco and House of Delegates Chair Stephen Zack in attendance at the luncheon.

We are indebted to the following sponsors who supported the section's Spring Conference in Washington. Without their support, many events would not have been possible.
